Fairfield hires Community Development director

Fairfield, California (Wednesday, January 24, 2018) - Fairfield City Manager David White announces the addition of Kevin Snyder to the City's executive team. After performing a nationwide search, Snyder has been selected to lead Fairfield's Community Development Department.

Snyder comes to Fairfield with over 24 years of public and private industry experience. He was most recently the director of the 150-staff Community Development and Public Works Department in the City of Auburn, Washington. "We are fortunate that Fairfield is the type of community that can attract a talented, experienced leader of Kevin's caliber," said White. "He comes with solid executive credentials and a strong background in all aspects of community development."

Snyder sees Fairfield as a unique community with an enviable location, a vibrant and growing economy, engaged citizenry, diverse housing choices, and a proactive City government. He is anxious to be a part of a City that has a history of being highly focused on successfully meeting the needs and expectations of its community. Snyder explains, "I am honored to have been chosen as Fairfield's next Community Development director. I am excited to work with the talented Department staff to deliver high quality services and support the ongoing implementation of the community's visions and goals."

Snyder earned a master's degree in Urban and Regional Planning from Portland State University, and holds distinction as a certified planner from the American Institute of Certified Planners. He is slated to begin with the City on February 27.
